SOCIAL MEDIA TOOLKIT

Since 2017, Facebook has worked with blood banks and organizations around the world to help increase voluntary blood donations. In the midst of the COVID-19 pandemic, the need for blood banks to maintain a safe and stable supply of blood is more urgent than ever. We recognize that this uncertain time presents unique challenges for blood banks across the world.

To help support your organization, we’ve created an easy-to-use social media toolkit for World Blood Donor Day to help you find creative ways to encourage healthy people to voluntarily give blood and support blood donations. Our goal is to help people understand why donating blood is an important, safe and necessary practice, especially right now.

We understand that based on local context, each city, region and country may have different approaches to blood donations and donors may have varying levels of comfort with giving blood during the COVID-19 pandemic.

While we’ve included suggested content in this toolkit, we defer to blood banks and local public health guidance on the best way to communicate about blood donations in your communities.

Included in the kit are videos, frames and key messages to help raise awareness about the need for blood donations and inspire people to take action and give blood.

After months of uncertainty, let’s share how people can regain a sense of purpose by helping others.

Read on for more information about the World Blood Donor Day campaign and detailed instructions on how to use these resources for World Blood Donor Day and beyond.

BACKGROUND & PURPOSE

Every few seconds, someone, somewhere needs a blood transfusion to save their life. But, while the need for blood is universal, timely access to safe blood is not.

Voluntary blood donors are essential to a safe and reliable blood supply. But in too many countries, people do not know when, where or how to give blood, leaving millions of people without access to this critical lifeline. Even countries with more developed blood banking infrastructure can still face blood shortages and challenges maintaining the safety of blood and blood products.

The COVID-19 pandemic has also changed how and where people can give blood. Countries around the world have been impacted by an acute shortage of voluntary blood donations as people adhere to stay-at-home orders and mobile blood drives are cancelled.

Yet unlike so many of the challenges and injustices the world faces today, this is one problem that every country and individual has the power to help fix, starting now. The Facebook Blood Donations feature is one tool that can help by allowing blood banks to quickly notify people when there is a need for blood in their community and communicate with nearby donors about how they can donate safely.

The World Health Organization’s theme for this year’s World Blood Donor Day is “Safe blood saves lives” with the slogan “Give blood and make the world a healthier place.”

About World Blood Donor Day 2020

HOW YOU CAN HELP

Before, during, and after World Blood Donor Day on June 14, we encourage you to join the campaign in three simple ways:

1. Spread the word about the constant need for safe blood and encourage individuals and organizations to do the same. To ensure that countries have a reliable supply of safe blood and blood products, they need a reliable flow of voluntary donations even during the COVID-19 pandemic.

2. Share how voluntary blood donations help save lives. Highlight the importance of voluntary blood donation by sharing how safe blood saves lives and how easy it is to donate safely.

3. Ask people to sign up as blood donors on Facebook to learn when and where to give blood safely. Join Facebook and partners around the world as we celebrate blood donors and inspire as many people as possible to sign up to be voluntary blood donors on Facebook in honor of World Blood Donor Day.

Safe blood saves lives. Every few seconds, someone, somewhere needs a blood transfusion to save their life.

- Access to safe blood and blood products is a matter of life or death for people who are suffering complications during childbirth; fighting to survive a road accident or natural disaster; enduring severe anemia or malnutrition; undergoing surgery; or struggling with cancer or blood disorders.
- Even when the world stops, millions of lives depend on regular access to safe blood transfusions.
- There is no substitute for blood. Countries rely on a continuous supply of blood donations to ensure safe blood is always available.

The right to access safe blood is universal. Access to safe, timely blood transfusions isn’t.

- Too many countries are currently experiencing an acute shortage of voluntary blood donations, leaving millions of people without access to this critical lifeline.
- Voluntary blood donors are essential to a safe and reliable blood supply, but in too many countries, people do not know when, where or how to give blood.

By supporting voluntary blood donations and the health systems they rely on, we can ensure that safe blood is available wherever and whenever it is needed to save lives.

- We all have the power to ensure universal access to safe, timely blood transfusions by signing up as voluntary blood donors.
- Facebook’s Blood Donations feature has made it easier for more than 60 million voluntary blood donors to find meaningful opportunities to give nearby.
- By becoming regular blood donors, we can ensure that no person or community goes without the life-saving blood they need.
- People who may not be eligible to donate blood can also make an impact by inspiring others to donate and spreading awareness about the constant need for safe blood at home and around the world.
